SPECIALIST GAMES RANGE

If you've collected an army for Warhammer, Warhammer 40,000 or The Lord of The Rings Strategy Battle Game, and you now fancy trying something a bit different within the Games Workshop hobby, then the Specialist Games range is for you.

Each of the Specialist Games has an original background setting based within the worlds and universe of Warhammer and Warhammer 40,000. They have also been designed to highlight a certain facet of the hobby. You may want to collect and paint miniatures that are in a different scale, or wish to develop a gang or team in a league or campaign environment; you may wish to role-play or tell stories through your games; or play games whose rules provide different tactical and strategic challenges; or you may just wish to push spaceships about on the table top!

Every game is supported by a stunning website that contains the 'living rulebook' that is an updated version of the rulebook with the latest rules, frequently asked questions, articles written by the Specialist Games team and players across the country, downloadable templates, experimental rules, battle reports, sneak peeks, and much, much more!

Within these pages you will find the complete range of miniatures that Games Workshop is producing for the Specialist Games ranges.

These models are normally not available in stores, however, there are numerous ways to purchase; you can use the Online Store, the in-store order service (within Games Workshop Hobby Centres), or, if you wish, you can ring the Games Workshop Direct phone line to place an order, where you'll also be able to talk directly with a Hobby Specialist, who will be able to answer any queries you may have.

The screenshot shows the Games Workshop Specialist Games website interface. At the top, there are navigation links for Home, Games, Store, Forums, Help, Games Workshop, and a Change Country option. The main content area features several articles:

- New Challenges For Experienced Gamers: Eight exciting games designed for players of Warhammer, Warhammer 40,000 & The Lord Of The Rings Strategy Battle Game.
 - Warmaster: Massive battles on the Warhammer world, Extensive range of 10mm Warmaster miniatures, Command huge armies. Find out more...
 - Fanatic Online 24: A preview of the magazine issue, mentioning a false start, a return to the helm, and a new issue every Friday.
 - Call to Arms: A preview of the magazine article, mentioning a new ready to take on the new by my dear baby son.
 - DRISIL LEATH CUSTODIAN CLASS BATTLESHIP: A preview of the magazine article, mentioning a 50-point ship.
- Fanatic Online Back Issues: A section for purchasing back issues of the magazine.
- Commerce Protection Fleets: Experimental rules for a new Tau fleet.
- Stubbers for Sale: House rules for Stubbers (not Guardians) in Necromunda.
- Design an Inquisitor: A chance to create out the number 100 enemies in the current Necromunda campaign.

On the right side, there is a 'Gallery' section showing various miniature models. Below the main content, there is a 'Fanatic Online has everything you would expect to find in a printed magazine, all at the touch of a button!' banner.

The Specialist Games website is the place to go to download the latest edition of Fanatic Online Magazine, as well as navigate to any of the back issues of Fanatic Online. In addition, you can link from the home-page to any of the games systems very easily.

This block shows a preview of the Fanatic Online magazine. It features several articles and images:

- Commerce Protection Fleets: Experimental rules for a new Tau fleet.
- Stubbers for Sale: House rules for Stubbers (not Guardians) in Necromunda.
- Design an Inquisitor: A chance to create out the number 100 enemies in the current Necromunda campaign.

WHAT IS...

Each individual Specialist Games system has its own brief intro on the 'What Is...' page, giving an overview of what each game is all about.

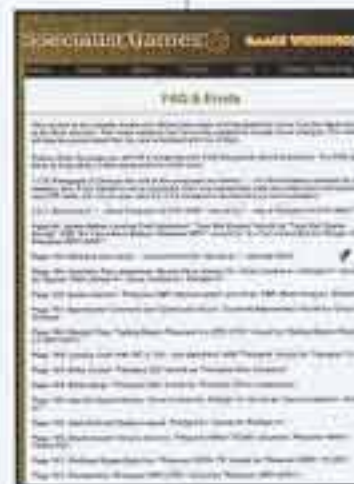

FORUM

Have your say in all things Specialist Games on our very own Forum. Here you can find anything from general discussions to specific rules queries.

RULEBOOK

The Online Rulebook is a free downloadable resource that amalgamates the printed edition rulebook with the latest errata to give you the most recent version of the game.

FAQ AND ERRATA

This section of the website details any official rules errata and typographical errors from the latest printing of the Battlefleet Gothic rulebook. The online rulebook has been fully updated to include these changes. The errata will also be incorporated into the next scheduled print run of the relevant rulebook.

ARTICLES

Within this section, you will find a whole array of articles on differing topics from house rules to battle reports, modelling, painting as well as background and discursive articles. All articles are free to download and use.

PLAYER AIDS

Player Aids are tools that help gamers to play their games. Reference sheets and army/team/fleet rosters are the most common form of Player Aid but there are also a few unique tools, such as name generators, hidden within the site.

EXPERIMENTAL RULES

Once we have some rules in a playable state they are put up on this page for you to download and play with. If you wish you can then give us feedback. Once we have accumulated enough feedback we'll produce an updated version of the rules or present a finished version to the relevant rules review.

SUBMISSIONS

Specialist Games continues to need your help – the website would not be the great resource it is without you! You can contribute in many ways, whether it is adding to discussions in the forums, providing a picture for our gallery or writing an article for the website.

NECROMUNDA™

The dripping of the water from the pipe over his head was driving Kell mad.

He shifted out of the way of the drip. After sitting in this dank hole for an hour he decided it wasn't the pipe, it was the waiting.

The Redfangs were looking to ambush their enemies the Wrecks, and they were going to be here any minute.

Another half hour. Where were they?

Suddenly a figure stepped into the clearing in the centre of the dome. He was a young but well-built man. Kell watched as the man looked around for any threats but the Redfangs were well hidden. Finally he waved the rest of his gang forward. Slowly they entered the dome. Just a few more feet...

A blaze of weapons fire poured from the surrounding area cutting down the men in the middle. Kell leapt out of his hole and ran screaming towards the group, chainsword and pistol in hand. In twenty seconds he would know if it was worth the wait..."

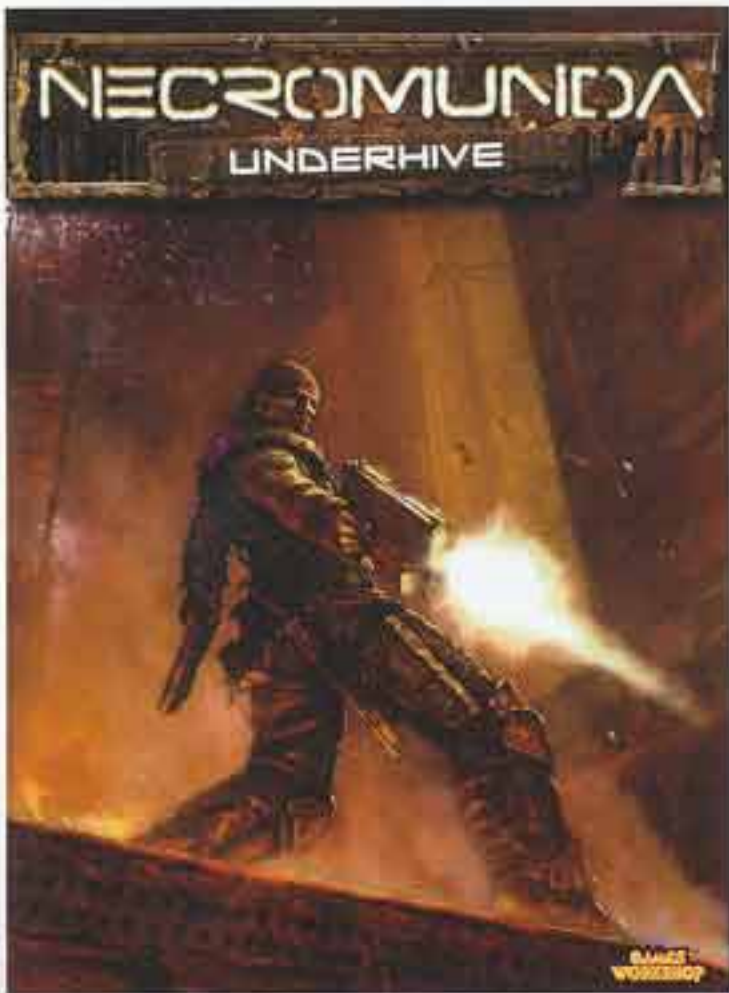

Necromunda is the swift and deadly gang warfare game of survival set in the nightmare of the Underhive. Inside the ancient and incomprehensibly vast hive city, built up layer upon layer and stretching ten miles into the planet's atmosphere, you control a gang of warriors who will have to fight to become the strongest gang in the hive. Necromunda allows you to play one-off games or full campaigns where your gang can develop or die, improve or be crushed

The aim of the game is to outfight your opponent, which requires a mixture of skill and luck. You'll soon learn how to arm and equip your gang efficiently, and how to exploit the ruins and other terrain to your best advantage. Many models are available for the different gangs and new models are coming out all the time. With these you can create your gang, equip fighters with different weapons, and add more powerful characters.

The main thing you need to ask your self though is – are you tough enough?

Andy Hobday's Unwashed Brotherhood

Andy: My Cawdor gang revere Smelly Bob as a holy man, blindly following him in the name of the Emperor. I used a Carnival of Chaos figure from the Mordheim range for Bob as I liked the big moon head. I gave him a chainsword from the Necromunda Weapon sprue, a book from a Redemptionist Zealot and strapped a boltgun to his back. I created the strap for the gun and mark of Nurgle out of Green Stuff.

I chose my big guns next, taking a heavy stubber for cheap hardcore firepower, and a flamer so I can flush out enemies in cover. The Cawdor don't have a flamer as a standard model so I converted one from the Cawdor grenade launcher model with the head of a Redemptionist, the Delaque flamer tanks and Orlock flamer arm! Two of my four Gangers were armed with boltguns, a perk for Cawdor which I couldn't ignore. The other two Gangers I armed differently: one with a shotgun and the other for close combat. I took three Juves to soak up my opponents' firepower and armed them with a variety of pistols just in case they get a chance to shoot at something.

Nick Kyme's Custodians

Nick: I chose this Enforcers gang as I like the idea of dispensing justice in the Underhive and the Enforcers are so cool. My choices are fairly restricted when choosing my patrol team. For balance, I took shotguns and power maul and suppression shield combos in equal measure. Add to that a heavy stubber, plasma gun, handler with a cyber-mutt, and a Sergeant with power maul and plasma pistol, and I was ready to dish out some police brutality.

I painted the Custodians with black armour carapace and yellow armour padding and motifs. I wanted a visual metaphor and these colours emulate police tape and warning chevrons. There are a few conversions with my Handler coming from a Sergeant model and armed with a modified bolter, so it can be wielded single-handed. I had my Handler firing it like so, so he looked more dynamic. My only other conversion was for my Heavy. Although Enforcer teams can only use heavy stubbers, I converted mine to carry a heavy bolter. I used the weapon from the original Orlock Heavy and clipped off the hands, replacing them with those of the Enforcer. In games it works as a heavy stubber.

Mark Chambers' Dead Marsh Defilers

Mark: Part of the appeal of using the Scavvies is they're cheap, so you get lots of them. This means that I can suffer quite a few casualties before I have to take a Bottle-Test. You also get Scalies – giant mutants who are just about as hard as it gets. So I took two. One of the biggest advantages are mutations for your Scavvies and Plague Zombies. So, with a tentacle here, a claw there and a Zombie 'meat-shield' for my Scavvy Boss, I'm confident my gang looks a scary prospect to get to grips with.

Scavvies are a scruffy lot, so I painted them using drab browns, but in the gloom of the Underhive it's too easy for your Scaly to transfix one of your gang with a six-foot spear. So I gave them all red markings and white trews. Then painted the scabs and sores... Mmmmm!

Andy Holmes' Lazenby's Spectres

Andy: For this gang, I decided to try the Van Saar; their access to the Techno skills list won me over. I could also spend my creds on more expensive pieces of kit, ensuring their longevity during a game with skills like Armourer or Weaponsmith.

When equipping my gang I went for a heavy plasma gun because of its blast template and awesome Strength of 7. My gang Leader (converted from one of the new Bounty Hunters) got a meltagun and a chainsword to give him an edge in close combat.

I decided to paint my Gangers in a dirty yellow colour scheme to make them look like they're wearing jump suits that have been covered in the grime of the Underhive. I also felt it was reminiscent of the minions in some of the old James Bond movies and carried this theme over to my Ganger's names. Every one is named after either a henchmen or villain from the Bond movies. So what better name for my gang than the Spectres?

EPIC

Epic takes wargaming to a grand scale – a 6mm scale. Instead of commanding a meagre detachment an Epic General takes command of an entire army of hundreds, if not thousands, of troops.

The true mighty battles of the 41st millennium come to life as you fight not an engagement, but a real struggle between vast forces.

Entire chapters of Space Marines can be brought to the field, complete with their entire complement of troops and vehicles.

Armies of Imperial Guard combine both vast infantry battalions and huge tank and artillery companies to bring devastation to the enemy.

Ork Waaagh!'s bring massed ranks of Boyz eager for the kill, backed up by the ever present threat of the uncanny and unreliable Orky teknoology.

And now the might of an Eldar craftworld is ready to bring destruction to the primitive enemies with their advanced technology and deadly skill.

But it's not just tanks and troops. In Epic, mighty war machines rumble across battlefields, towering Titans stride above the heads of men bringing the wrath of the Machine God to the battlefield, and aircraft laden with awesome and destructive payloads scream through the skies.

The system is a smooth and elegant one where opponents alternate unit by unit rather than the traditional alternating turn system. This allows for sweeping advances and sudden reactions, making your decision to prioritise units, and your ability to think one move ahead, of absolute importance.

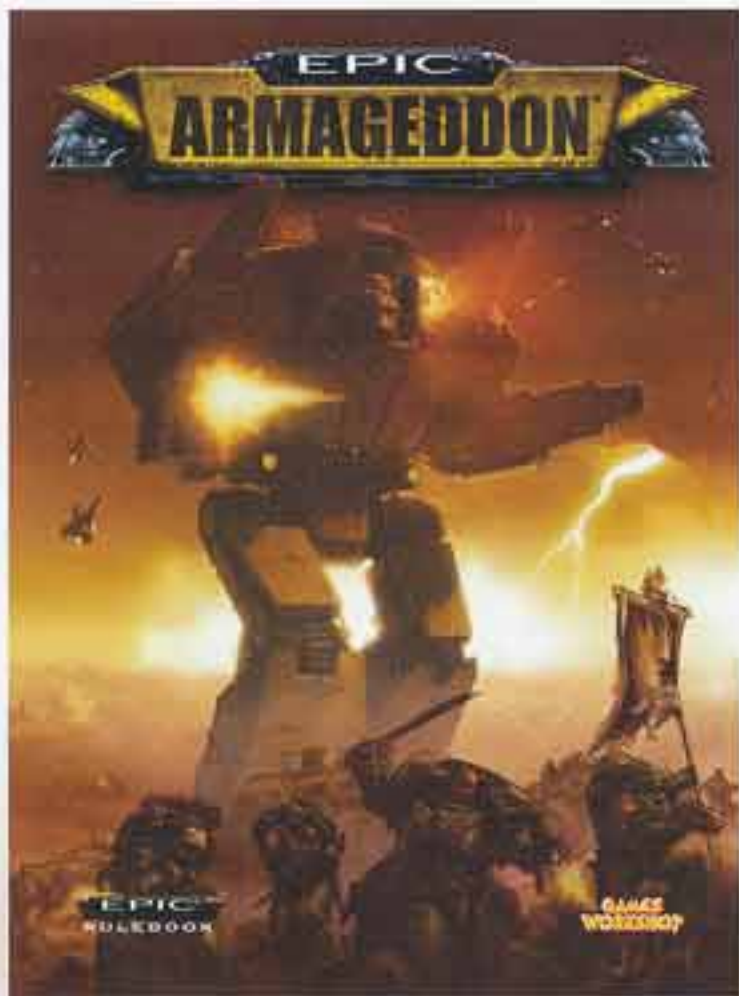

Smooth and fast flowing, the Epic system allows for a tactical mind to conceive and execute carefully laid strategies and brilliant acts of outmanoeuvring, as the grim darkness of the far future is played out on an Epic scale.

Epic Armageddon is the first chapter in the Epic series, focussing on the third Armageddon war and its main participants – the Space Marines, the Armageddon Steel Legion and Ghazghull's Ork Waaagh!

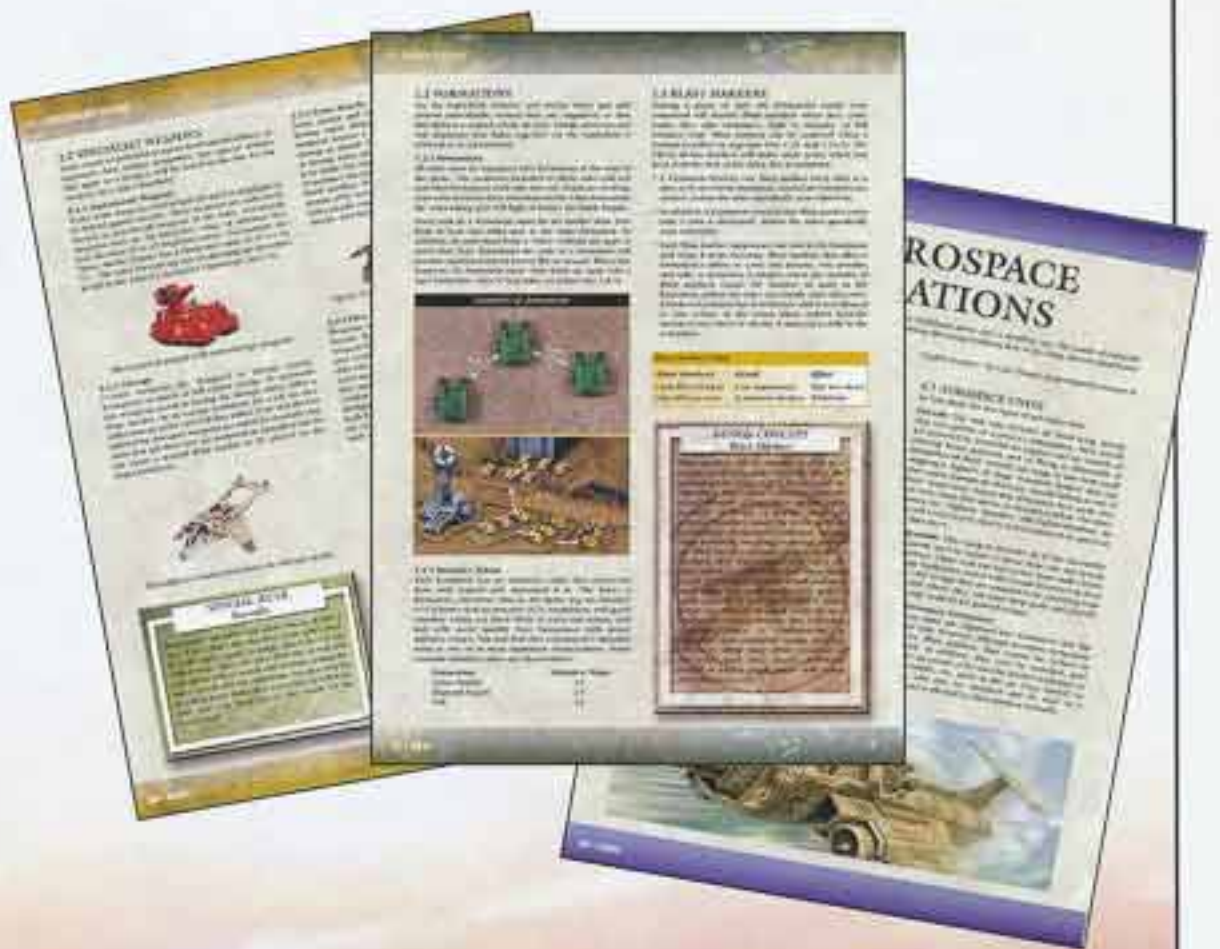

Epic Swordwind is the first supplement in the Epic series, and introduces the Biel-Tan craftworld of the Eldar. In addition, it also adds new units for Imperial Guard and Orks.

Andy Millington's Siegemasters

Andy: I have always been a fan of Epic scale gaming, as the small scale and huge battles offer vast tactical scope. With the Siegemasters I found an army that perfectly captured the tactics and grim fatalism of World War one armies. So I picked up a couple of Siege Infantry boxes, plenty of shadow grey and scorched brown paint and sat down with a DVD of 'Blackadder Goes Forth' to begin painting the army.

The army is based around its three core infantry formations, each with supporting Thudd Guns and Rapier Launchers. I had some Griffon and Hellhound blister packs lurking so added these to the formations as well. The hardest hitting unit in the army is the Siege Artillery Battery which has an awesome 9 blast points per turn. After a few games I found the army had a problem dealing with war machines, so a Deathstrike battery and Shadowsword were drafted in to balance this out. The final part to be painted was the air support with plenty of Marauder Bombers and Thunderbolt fighters and with the WWI theme I just had to paint one as the Red Baron!

I'm hoping to add a couple more infantry formations to the army and of course build some trenches and bunkers for them to garrison. All I need now is a cunning plan...

Nick Appleby's Imperial Guard Planetary Defence Force

Nick: My first ever Games Workshop game was 'Space Marine' and since then I have loved Epic in all its various forms. Imperial Guard have always been the army I have collected, but usually with more in the way of Titans. The army you see here was selected for use at Games Workshops various events, and was painted by the talented George Dellapina, but I regularly use it for my own games.

This is the selection I use most often as it has a nice balance of units, and to me really fields like an army that would come from a standard PDF. The Leman Russ tank company is perhaps the most survivable unit in the entire Guard force. With its reinforced armour and ability to engage any unit type successfully, and supported by a Hydra Flak battery, it is usually a tough nut to crack. Those cheap infantry platoons are bang on for Garrison forces in the game, being a bit of a speed bump for most armies, giving me time to tie up and outmanoeuvre the enemy.

Of course, no Imperial Guard army would be complete without big guns, and lots of them, so in comes the artillery company, a truly horrific beast able to worry the largest Ork Mobs, and the hardest war machines. Top it all off with an objective grabbing Mechanised company, and you have an army that is hard hitting, quick if need be, and tough to beat back.

BATTLEFLEET GOTHIC

Battlefleet Gothic is the game of titanic space battles in the 41st millennium, set during the apocalyptic times of the Gothic War.

The boxed set contains all you need to play including full rules, scenarios and campaign ideas. Fight battles as the Imperial fleet, the unholy renegades of Chaos, brutal Ork Pirates, or fickle but powerful Eldar as fraught combat unfolds in the cold void of space. Survival is never guaranteed as warships miles long unleash firepower enough to destroy worlds in a desperate fight for survival and supremacy.

Battle Fleet Gothic: Armada widens the action to encompass all the battles of the Warhammer 40,000 universe, allowing you to command the fleets of the monstrous organic warships of the Tyranids, the iron fist of the Space Marine fleets, the sophisticated explorer fleets of the nascent Tau Empire, the lithe yet deadly Dark Eldar Corsairs, and even the ancient and terrible tombships of the awakening Necron.

Join the struggle to command the stars in Battlefleet Gothic; protect the Imperium or crush it utterly. The fate of a billion worlds is in your hands.

INQUISITOR

Are you the one they call the Flesh-Taker?" A voice, loud and powerful, called out in the ruined manufactory, echoing off rusted metal walls, the same question asked by a dozen voices.

In the darkness a shadow shifted, malformed and misshapen. A guttural voice answered, low and mocking. "This place is not for you pureborn, not for your kind. You have found death here."

The questioning figure drew himself up; tall and lean, his long coat opened to reveal the silver-glint of carapace plate. "There is no place in this wide universe I cannot go, no door barred to me, no world where my writ does not run, in His holy name!" There was the soft rustle of prayer-parchment. Light flared as the golden glow suffused the seal in the man's hand.

The Flesh-Taker screamed in pain, then declared, "Inquisitor! You have found us, now you must die; die for your false god! Take him my sweetlings, he is alone!"

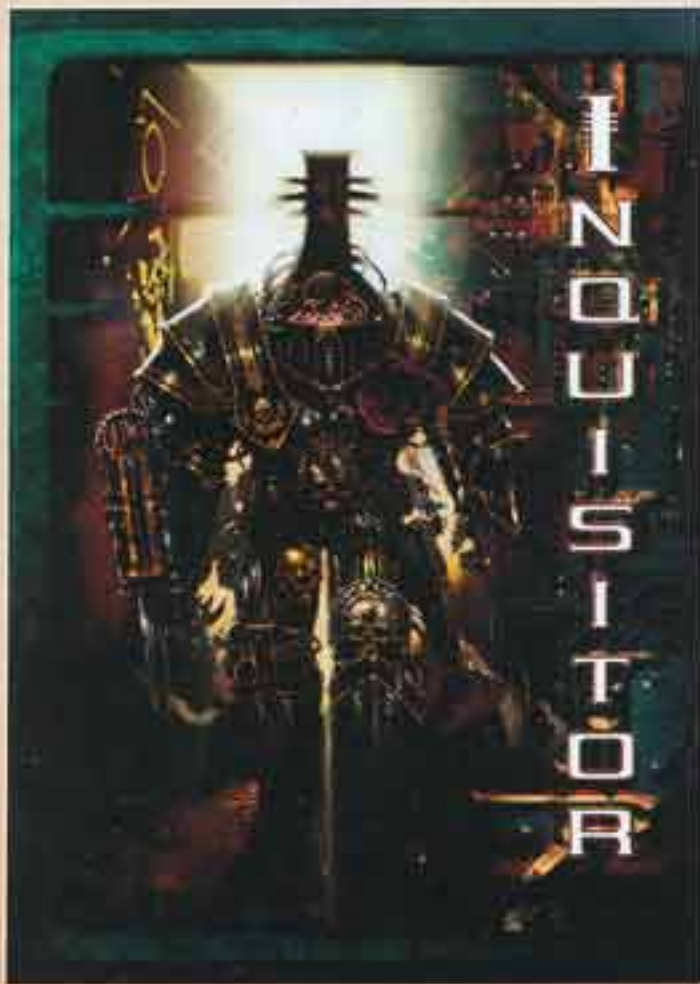

A dozen twisted forms rushed from the shadows only to recoil as jets of flame leapt from the Inquisitor's other hand, never seeing the other shapes, like rippling black satin, flowing down from above them.

"Misbegotten unbelievers, no servant of the Emperor is ever truly alone." The Inquisitor pronounced as the mutants began to die.

Inquisitor is an exciting large-scale narrative skirmish game set in the 41st millennium. This hyper-detailed game allows you to design your own characters and warrior bands or use existing templates to leap right into play. Take on the role of a powerful Inquisitor and his retinue and hunt down renegades, heretics, mutants and traitors and protect the Imperium at any costs, or take the part of the enemies of Mankind and bring ruin and destruction on the servants of the Emperor and Humanity! Battle for the Emperor's soul.

MORDHEIM™

Mordheim, City of the Damned. Struck by the wraith of Sigmar at the close of 1999 of the Imperial Calendar, it is now a city of sorrow. There is nothing more than ruins and the unmistakable stench of decay and death.

Timber frames emerge from the rubble as though the bones of some great leviathan washed up on the land. Wild dogs, scavengers and all manner of strange beasts pick the ruins clean seeking any nourishment they can find, be it dead or alive. Madmen, fanatics and Witch-Hunters are drawn to the city like moths to a flame, preaching, burning and cleansing as they go whilst groups of brave (some would say foolhardy) men band together to make their riches and name in the lands of the Empire. It is said that for every shard of wyrdstone found and for every hero made, a thousand more suffer a fate worse than death. Transformed by the magiks of this terrible treasure they so seek and they are reduced to gibbering spawn; the slaves and playthings of the Shadowlord, he who resides in the pit, the centre of all of Mordheim's madness and despair.

Giant rats that walk like men are said to stalk the ruins of the city whilst covens of men who have turned their back upon Sigmar sacrifice innocent souls with the promise of power from their dark gods. The dead walk the earth, unable to rest and doomed to fulfil their Vampire lord's biddings.

Despite all this, there is some hope. The Sisters of Sigmar spared the destruction of the comet watch over the city from their temple that stands on a vast rocky pillar overlooking the River Stir. Some whisper that they were spared not by their lord but by much darker forces.

Welcome to the City of the Damned...

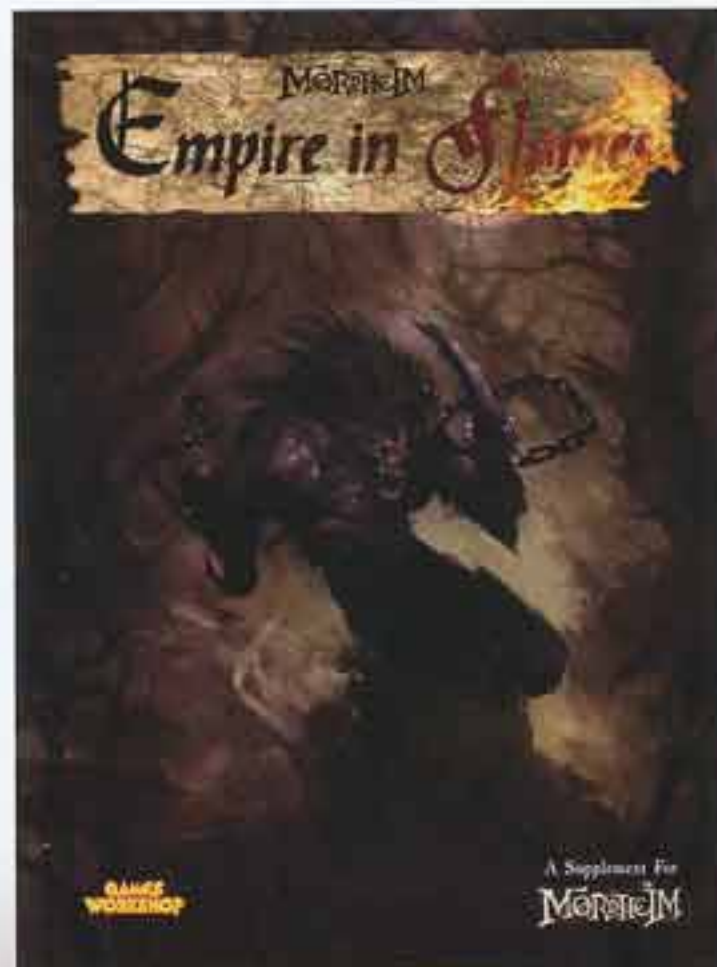

Mordheim is a tabletop skirmish game set amongst the ruins of this once proud city. Take control of a small band of brave warriors and make a name for yourself by fighting off like-minded gangs and collecting wyrdstone along the way. With a detailed campaign and experience system, each model will feel as if they have had a long and illustrious career hunting within the city on to die with a knife in the back!

Left: This 176-page rulebook covers all of the rules you need to know for playing games in the City of the Damned.

Right: Empire in Flames is a complete new supplement for the Mordheim game. With it, you can take your conflicts out of the city and into the wilds. The book contains rules sections covering terrain, new equipment, mounted combat, vehicles, new hired swords, new scenarios and everything you need to make your warbands' fortune in these nightmarish times.

WARMASTER®

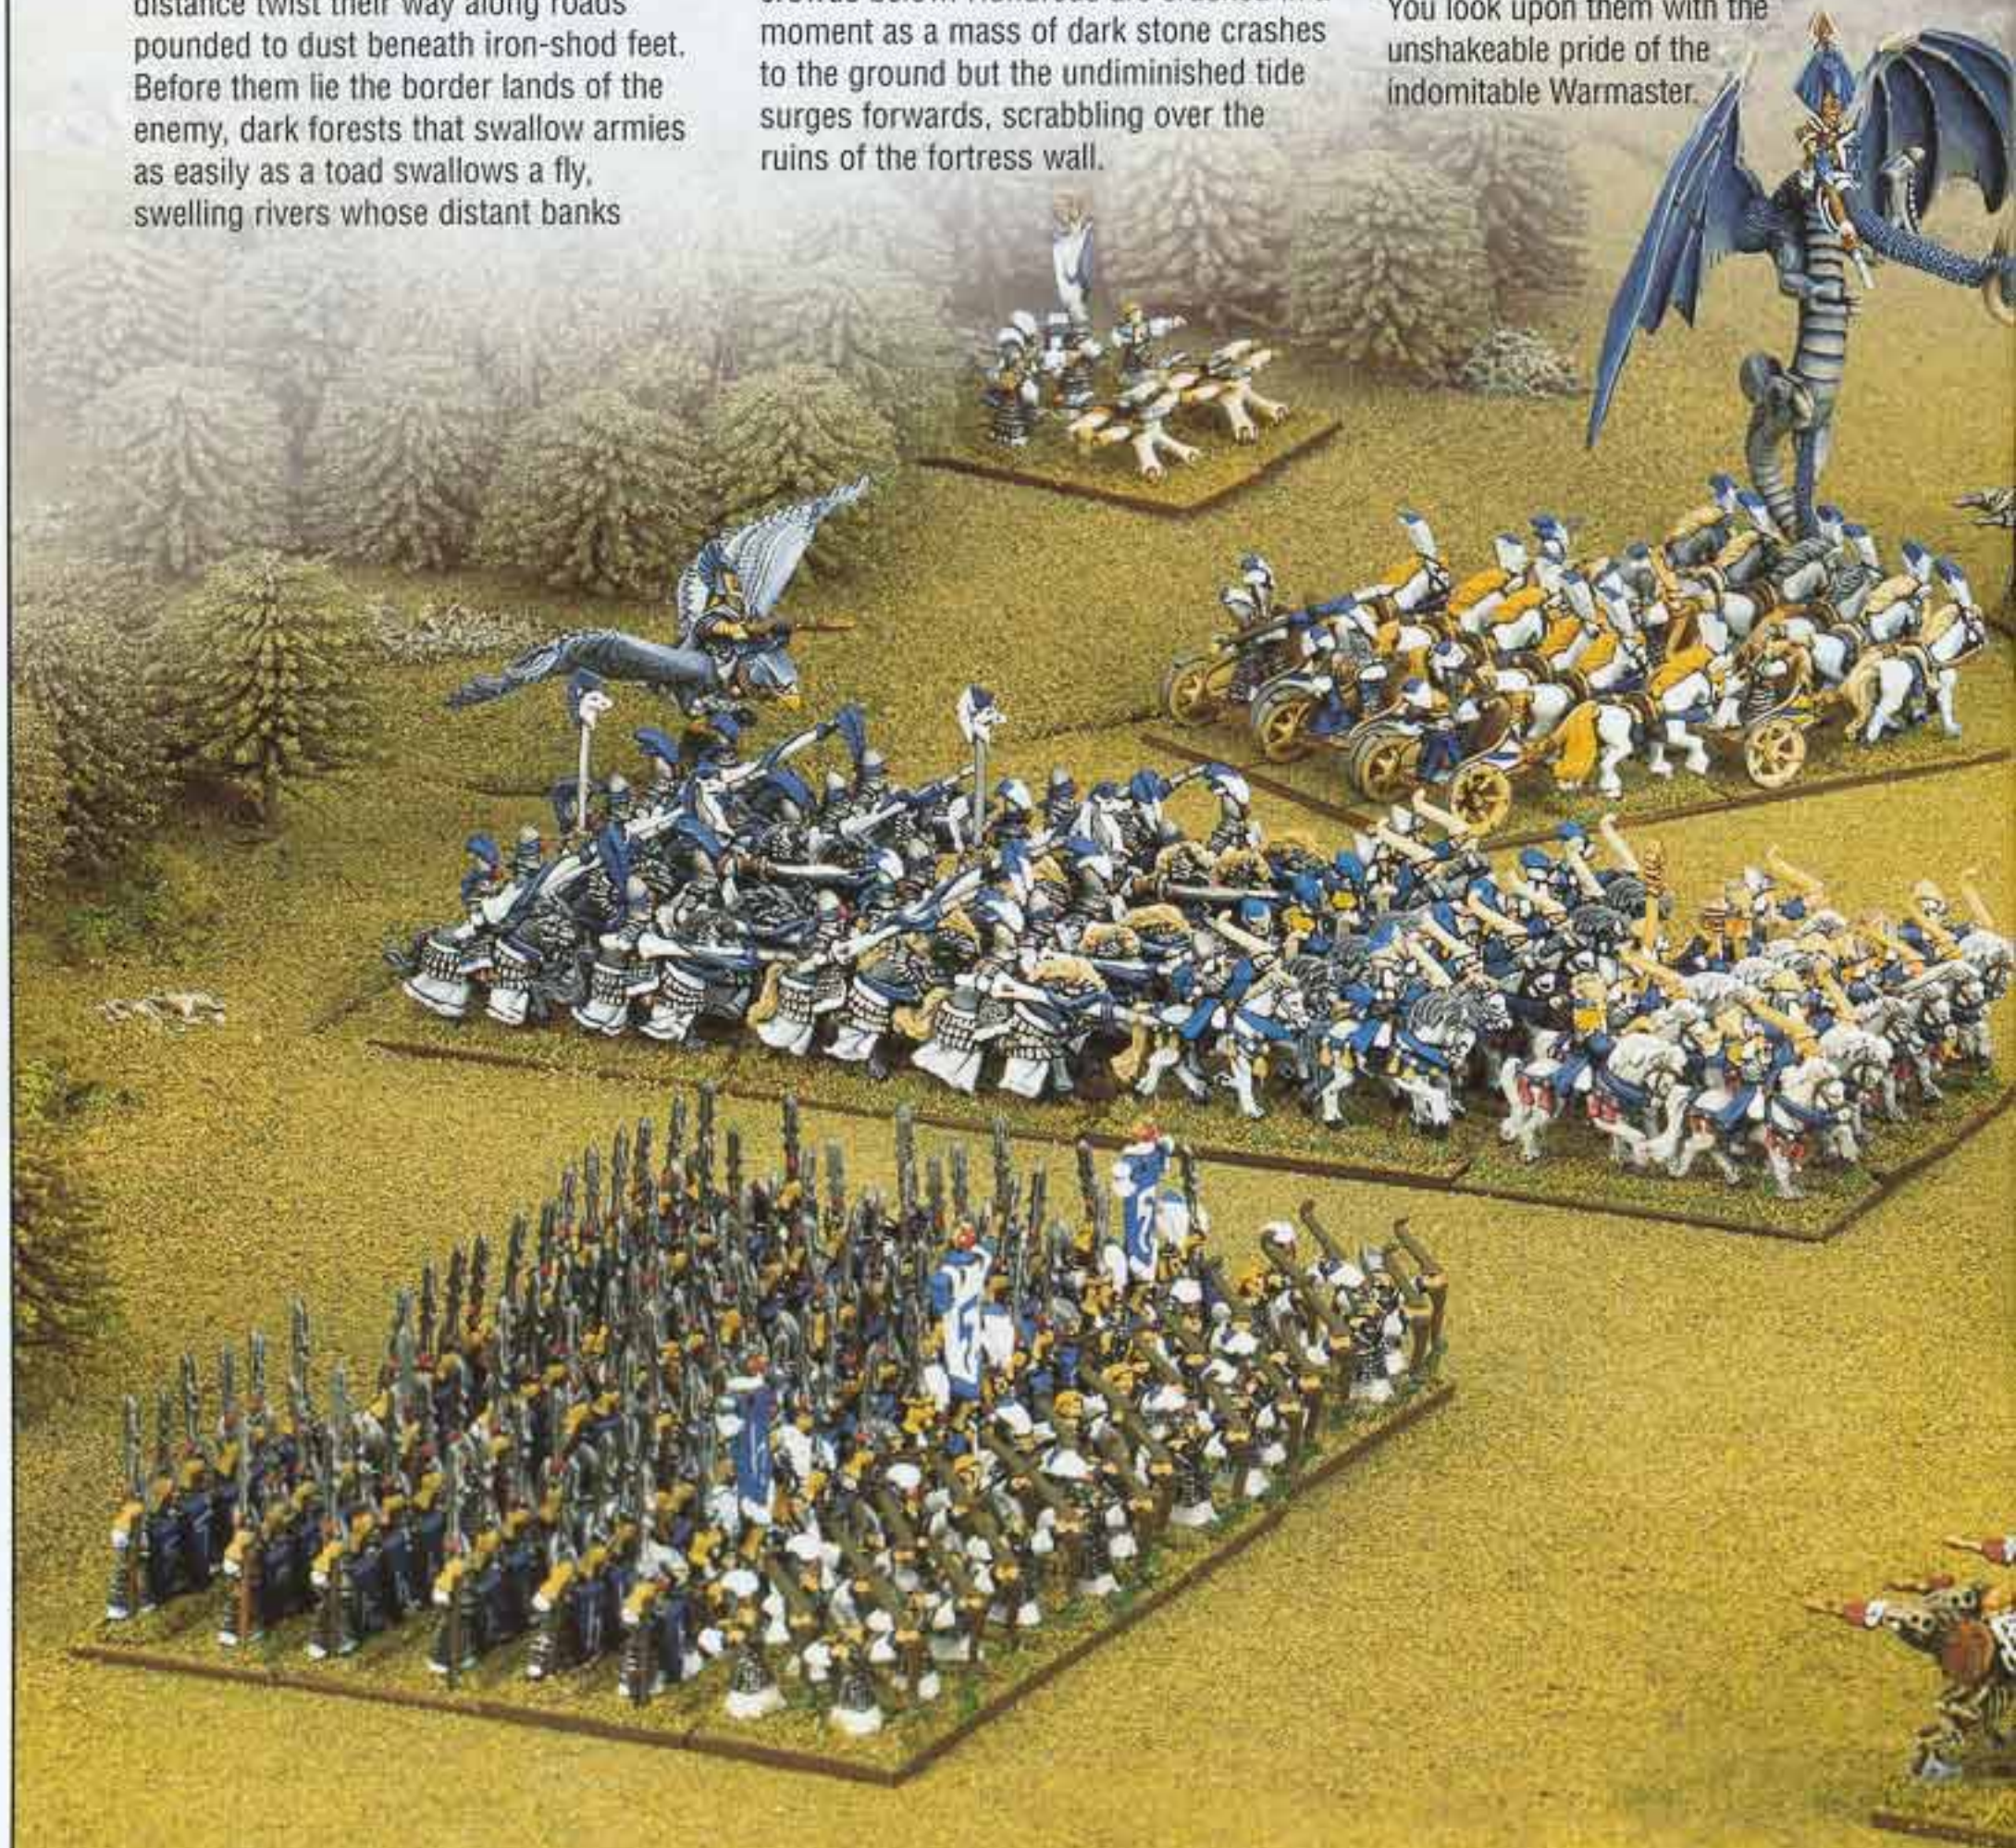

Multitudes march to war.
Innumerable bodies
merge like insects
beneath the eye of a colossus.

Columns stretching invisibly into the distance twist their way along roads pounded to dust beneath iron-shod feet. Before them lie the border lands of the enemy, dark forests that swallow armies as easily as a toad swallows a fly, swelling rivers whose distant banks shimmer under a hazy sun and finally, a wall of black-towered fortresses whose battlements rise in stony defiance of would-be conquerors.

Stone shatters with a crack like thunder and broken towers tumble upon the crowds below. Hundreds are crushed in a moment as a mass of dark stone crashes to the ground but the undiminished tide surges forwards, scrabbling over the ruins of the fortress wall.

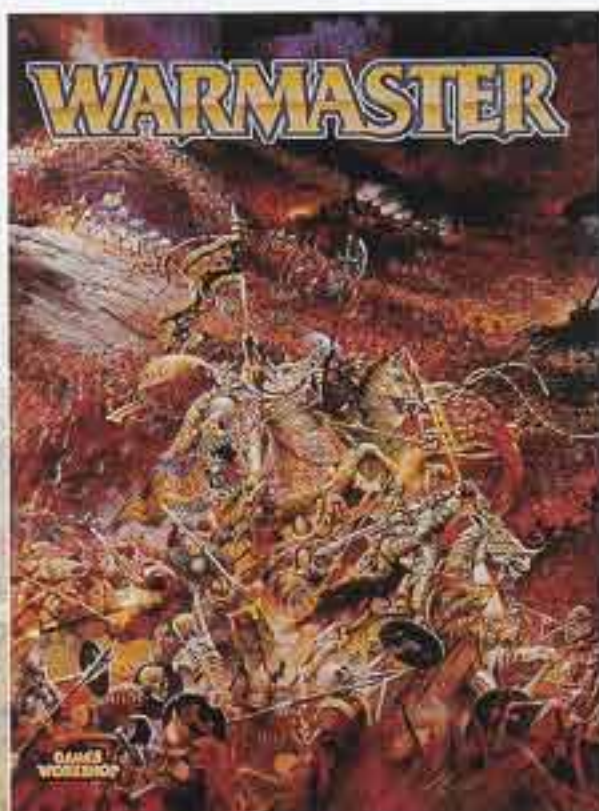

With a thousand voices, the horde proclaims its possession of the land it has won – a new nation forged in battle to rule all others! Through smoke and ruin of destruction they advance, an unstoppable army whose ranks spill into the broad plain as effortlessly as a flood tide. You look upon them with the unshakeable pride of the indomitable Warmaster.

Andy Holmes' Empire army

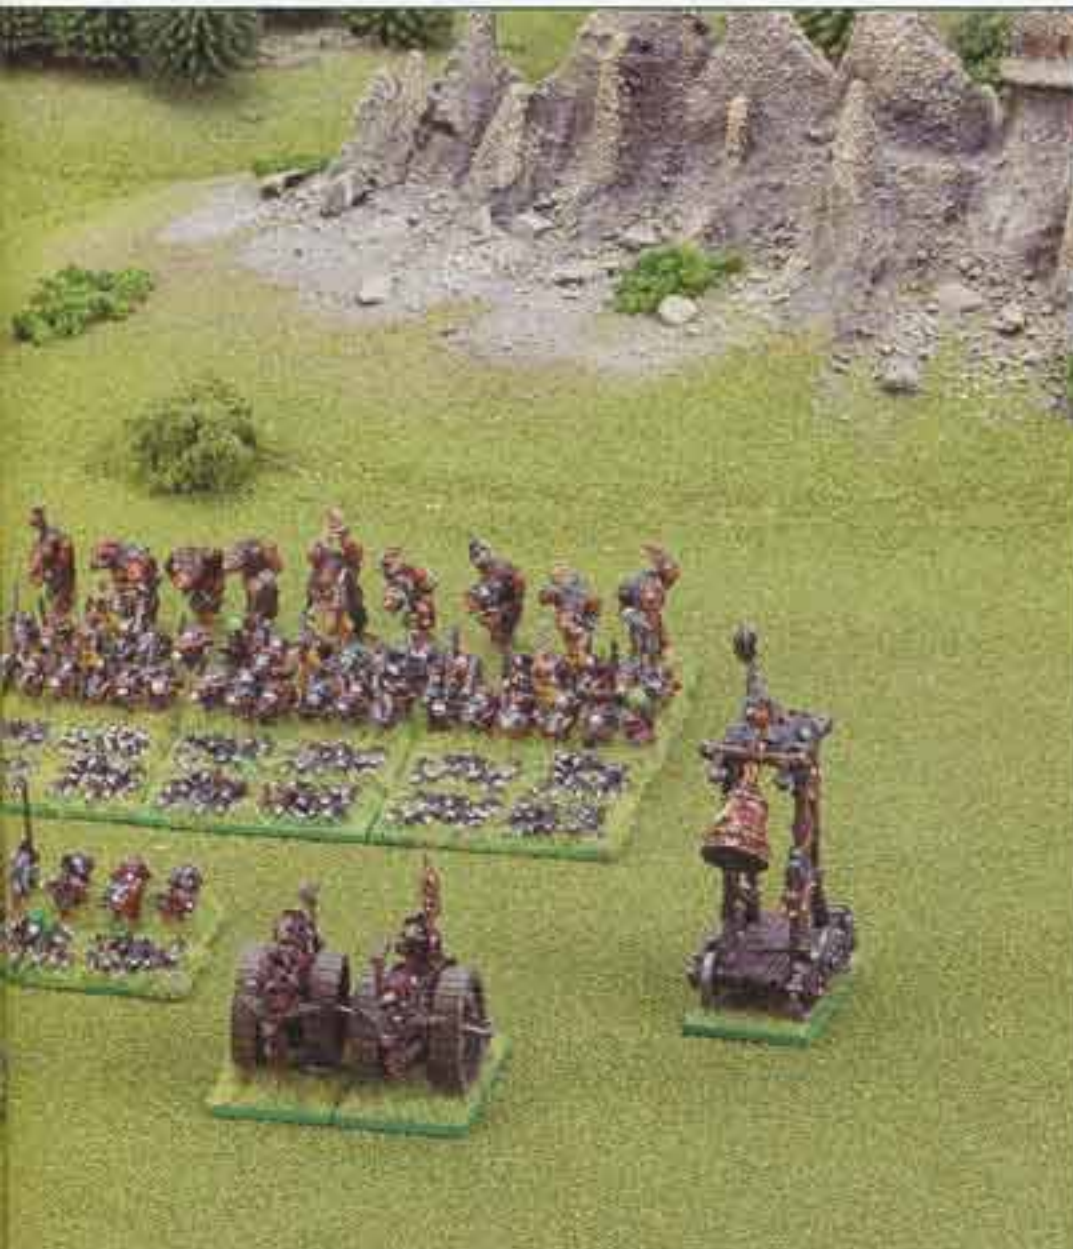

When Andy first started on this army he intended to produce a force from Talabheim.

Before very long however he was lured into the glory of Middenheim. The Storm of Chaos was raging and the city of Ulric needed all the help it could get!

For the Middenheim feel he has used wolves for his skirmishers and a brigade of Teutogen Guard. Following his feel of a Storm of Chaos army he uses two big brigades of knights drawn from the Knights of the White Wolf and the Knights Panther (both native to Middenheim). These tend to come crashing into the enemy with enough force to clear any opponent from the field, while his infantry move up in support.

Notably leading his army is the figure of Valten in his guise as Champion of Sigmar, this is one of Andy's favourite models we have produced.

Tom Gilbert's Skaven

Tom: The moment I first saw Warmaster being played I knew I had finally found the right scale for Skaven. On this scale you can really capture the feel of the Vermin-tide as it rolls across the field, one huge mass of scurrying, screaming, rat like bodies.

I built this force around a solid bulk of six units of Clanrats and eight units of Rat Swarms. Suddenly my army was huge.

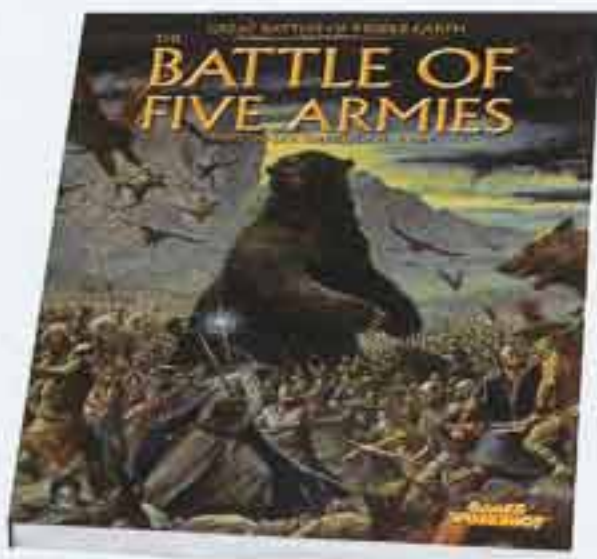

I supported these with some more specialist troops and tried to ensure that all the main clans were represented, the awesome Warp Lightening Cannons (including one converted out of the extra bits you get with the Cannons), three units of the unstoppable Rat Ogres, two Doom Wheels (these things regularly smash through Andy's Cavalry brigades!) and a unit of Plague Monks.

Possibly my favourite model in the army is the little Eshin Triad (one of the character models at the front) made especially for a Storm of Chaos Battle report.

THE BATTLE OF FIVE ARMIES

IT'S A BATTLE IN A BOX...

The Battle of Five Armies is based upon the famous battle at the end of The Hobbit between Men, Elves and Dwarves on the one side, and Goblins and Wargs on the other. The Battle of Five Armies squeezes the complete forces for both sides, a rulebook, dice and terrain into the one box. Various blister packs are also available for both good and evil sides, as shown opposite.

BLOOD BOWL®

Good evening sports fans! You join us here at the Altdorf Stadium as the Reikland Reavers face off against the Harganeth Hurricanes. There's the kick, it's a quick snap and the Reavers are on the offensive.

Player 6, Felix Hault has the ball and oh! Markel Redblood has blocked him; Hault is down, is that blood?

Jezia Spitefist has it. That Witch Elf is a definite crowd pleaser, she really knows what the fans like – wouldn't you agree Bob?"

"Definitely Jim, Jezia dodges left, then right, oh look at that, she knocked that guy right off his feet!"

"I think that was Karl Krieg. He looks hurt. The medics are on their way out. I'm pretty sure his leg shouldn't be at that angle..."

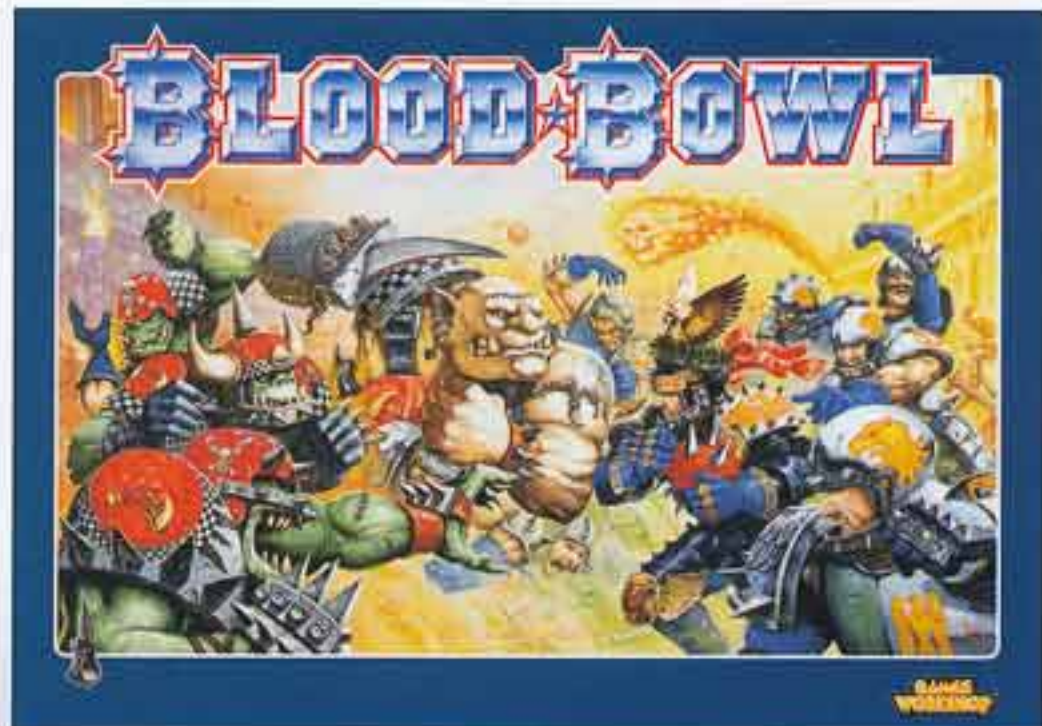

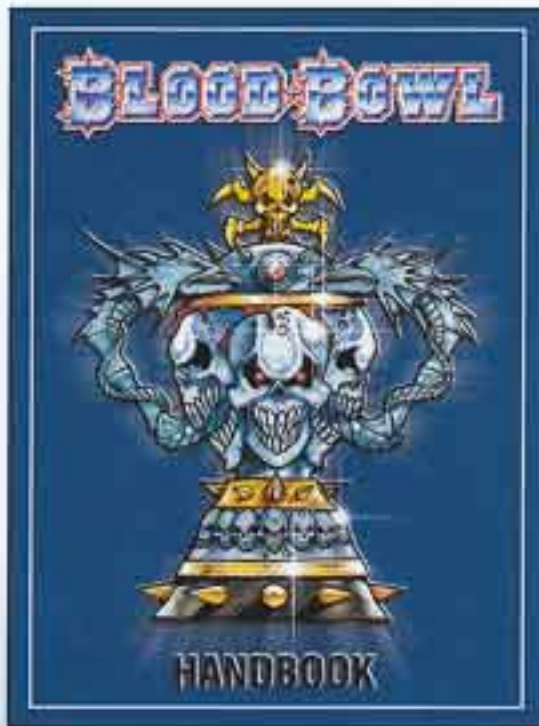

"Never mind him Jim look at Jezia go, 30 yards, 20 yards, 10 yards... Touchdown!!!"

"The crowd are loving it Bob, it looks like Jezia has earned her place in the Hall of Fame tonight."

Blood Bowl is the fast paced game of fantasy football where you coach your team of highly trained athletes in one-off friendly games or full-blown leagues where you can win the coveted Blood Bowl trophies.
